The scientific and research activities of the department are directed at the basic research in the field of analytical methods and control processes substantial for the identification and quantification of the components in biological systems in the terms of health and environment protection. The centre of our studies is in the field of instrumental analysis (2D HPLC-UV/MS, 2D CE-UV/DAD/LIF/MS, RRFA, biosensors, UV-VIS and Fluorescence spectrophotometric methods, etc.) with the emphasis on the multicomponent inorganic analysis of biogenic and toxic elements, the level of drugs and their metabolites in biological matrixes, profiling of endogenous substances as potential biomarkers, and analysis the foreign substances in environment. The research is mainly oriented at the field of biomedical studies (pharmacokinetics, metabolism studies, biomarkers monitoring, diagnostic studies, etc.) In the area of nuclear pharmacy, the Department focuses on the design, and the field of preparation and analytical evaluation of new molecules as potential new radiopharmaceuticals and coordinative chemistry of biologically important substances.
The research activities of the department are directed towards the complex research, design and study of the properties of bioactive molecules – potential drugs. The central idea of departmental research is the chirality of bioactive compounds, their preparation and their effect upon biosystems. The research activity is mainly performed in the following areas:
- study of newly synthesized compounds with β-adrenergic effect, stereo selective synthesis of selected aryloxyaminopropanol type compounds;
- design, preparation and study of properties of new membrane active amphiphilic compounds including the assessment of their biological activity at the cellular and sub-cellular level, study of their colloidal properties, study of nanocarriers;
- utilization of enantiomeric separation methods for evaluation of stereo selective metabolism of selected drugs possessing stereogenic centre(s);
- design, preparation and study of coordination compounds of biologically important central atoms and ligands mainly with antiflogistic, radioprotective and superoxide dismutase like activities;
- research in the field of compounds negatively influencing the human body (illicit drugs, antidoping and other prohibited compounds) in the framework of the Centre of excellence in security research;
- employing computer methods for designing of new biologically active compounds – CAMD (computer-aided molecular design);
- multinnstrumental spectral and analytical methods (GC-MS/MS, LC-MS/MS LC- high resolution MS (Orbitrap), DART)

The scientific and research activities of the department are centred into three projects with grant preference:
a) Study of derivates and analogues of phenylcarbamatic acid as potential drugs,
b) Molecular modelling and study of new drugs characteristics,
c) Study of new drugs and substances characteristics in compliance with the European Union legislation.

This activity is realized through targeted projection, modelling, synthesis, analysis and study of physical and chemical characteristics of new local anaesthetics, beta-adrenolytics, antiarrhythmics, antituberculotics, free radicals suppressors, antineoplastics and disinfectants. The main emphasis is put on the study of relations between chemical structure and biological activity with the utilisation of QSAR methods and molecular modelling. This research is supported by international grants as well.

The department research is focused on requirements of the social practice and is targeted at the drugs with the biogenic origin: The Section of Pharmacognosy in its research comes out of natural materials (drugs, fresh plants, vegetable and animal products), isolates their active substances, determines their structure, biochemical, physical and chemical characteristics, studies the mechanics of their production and their significance in the context of living nature. It studies mutual interactions of secondary metabolites and modifications connected with its biological characteristics in vitro and in vivo. It also studies anatomical and morphological evaluation of practically significant drugs.

The Section of Botany and Pharmacoergasy – the main areas of scientific activities of Section of Botany and Pharmacoergasy are focused on botanical research of medicinal plants and mushrooms, anatomy and morphology of plant organs, diversity of medicinal plants and mushrooms, and agriculture of medicinal plants with emphasis to influence of environmental factors to quality of plant drugs.

The Central library (CL) of the Faculty of Pharmacy, Comenius University is a specialised academic library and it provides the following services: external, in-house and interlibrary loan services; retrieval, photocopying and other services. In the 2017 (April – September), a complete reconstruction of the library premises at Kalinčiakova 8 was carried out, enabling users to use library services in a new, open space furnished with modern and comfortable mobiliaries, with free access to documents and a larger number of study places. Library catalogue contains 77 090 library units. They yearly growth constitutes of almost 1,000 new monographs and textbooks, around 64 printed journals and 45 000 foreign e-journals and books. The basis of collection consists of monographs, textbooks, scripts, handbooks and year-books. Part of the collection is deposited in 13 sectional libraries. The CL archives and provides a collection of graduation theses and scientific studies defended at the faculty. The CL provides licensed electronic information resources from the pharmaceutical and related sciences – together 6 specialised databases. The CL provides automated loaning services and contributes to the creation of internal databases of the Academic Library of Comenius University: online catalogue, evidence of publication activities of faculty employees, providing access to defended graduation and qualification theses. The CL provides the information education for students and faculty employees. Since the year 2000 it is a member of Slovak library association.

Recording, checking and assessing the study results

(1) Detailed stipulation of relationships arising within recording and checking of study are listed in Art. 2 of the Annex to the Study Regulations of CU: General rules for enrolment to study, recording and checking of study results at the faculties of CU.

(2) Assessment of student’s study results within studying a subject (hereinafter referred to as "assessment of the subject") is carried out especially by:
   a) continuous check of student’s results during teaching period of given period of study (control questions, written tests, individual tasks, semester works, seminar papers etc.),
   b) an examination for the given study period.

(3) Optional subjects are assessed by continuous checking of study results in accordance with par. 2. a), except the cases when student has selected a compulsory or compulsory optional subject as his/her optional subject that is assessed by an examination.

(5) Conditions for completion and assessment of subject are specified in the Course Unit Information Form where the form of assessment and conditions for obtaining individual grades of assessment (Art. 23).

(6) Recommended study plan prescribes for one semester no more than five subjects completed by an examination. Student has right to design his/her study plan in such a way that he may complete more than five compulsory and compulsory optional subjects completed by an examination.

(7) Particular manner of study check including the respective dates and manner of evaluation of the study check shall be announced by the teacher at the beginning of the semester.

Art 23

B – very good (above average results) (numeric value 1,5),
C – good (average results) (numeric value 2),
D – satisfactory (acceptable results) (numeric value 2,5),
E – sufficient (results meet minimum criteria) (numeric value 3),
FX – insufficient (additional work is required) (numeric value 4).

Dissertation examination and defence of dissertation work is assessed as “passed” or “failed”.

(2) Assessment (mark, grade) reflects quality of knowledge or skills acquired in accordance with the goals of the subject specified in the Course Unit Information Form.

(3) Subject has been passed if the student obtained the assessment from A to E. Student shall obtain credits for successfully completed subject only.

(5) Enrolled subjects which the student hasn’t completed, e.g. didn’t take part in the final assessment or didn’t take part in compulsory educational activities listed in the Course Unit Information Form and a teacher didn’t excuse his/her absence (see Art. 20 par. 9), are at the end of the examination period assessed by FX.34

(6) Weighted study average is used to assess student’ s total study results. Weighted study average for the academic year/semester is calculated as follows: for all subjects enrolled in particular academic year/semester, numeric value of a grade (par. 1) is multiplied by a credit evaluation pertaining to this subject. The values acquired are counted. The total is divided by the total number of credits for the particular year/semester, the result equals weighted study average. It includes also the subjects assessed by mark “4” which the student enrolled in and were assessed by FX or which the student enrolled in and he/she did not complete them and, thus, the subjects were assessed by FX according to par. 5.

(7) Weighted study average for the entire study is calculated similarly as determined in par. 6, but only successfully completed subjects are calculated.

(8) Weighted study average is used especially in tenders required by capacity limits of teaching process, in deciding to award some scholarships, in providing accommodation at the Student Hostels and the like.

Art 24
